Dear Carrie we expected that you would have written long ere this to tell me at least that you had safely arrived at home. I hope we will hear from you today. I received a letter from Father the day before yesterday. I am afraid my visit to Franks will fall through. We went fishing the other day and the little waggon broke down a mile from home. It was pretty warm, so we had a hot time. Uncle Walter has gone this morning to see about having the buggy fixed, so aunt Sallie says, as I have not yet given up my trip. I can't give it up, for I want to go. I went to the reading club the other night had a pleasant time. Emmie Eddie Edith Walter King Richard, and myself all went from here. Emmie Ed has been suffering with a screw in his ear ever since you left. I went to see Miss Octavia Herbert and Eggie and Emma Posey yesterday evening. Edith went with me. Ellen Judge was there. She has been out to see me. Edith expects to have a pleasant time up there. We must and get Father to send for the crockery as soon over the river as soon as possible, get the crockset set if possible. Edith is just reading a letter from you. Aunt Sallie and I are much obliged to you for our letters.
